Religious Freedom

Over the last decade there has been a number of political attacks made against Christians in an attempt to force them to compromise their beliefs and traditions and instead to adopt the beliefs of those who oppose them.

If I am elected to Parliament, I will be introducing legislation that will protect the right of Churches (of all religions), and institutions that are connected to a church (schools, nursing homes, etc.) to hire and fire staff in accordance with their beliefs and traditions.

State of Emergency Powers

If I am elected to Parliament, I will be introducing amendments to State of Emergency Powers that would allow local governments to opt-out of any State of Emergency mandates that they do not believe are relevant to their local government area. This would mean that those mandates would not be enforced in those local government areas.

Economic Freedom

The state government currently has a debt of 130 billion dollars and has no plan to change that. The greater debt we accumulate today the greater burden we place on future generations.

If I am elected to Parliament, I will be proposing a freeze on the wages of Parliamentarians until the debt is paid off. This will give them an incentive to pay it off rather than continuing to throw money around in order to win votes.
